

Your Website Score Report

71–100%

You're close — let's close the gap.

Your site is performing well against the fundamentals. This report identifies the refinements that will take you from good to genuinely exceptional — the details that separate a site that converts from one that dominates.

Reviews are good — positioning can be sharper

THE REFINEMENT

Your social proof is there, but the specific review you're featuring in the hero may not be your most persuasive one. The wrong review in the hero is a missed opportunity even if it's positive.

THE FIX

Audit every Google review you have. Find the one that speaks most directly to your best client type — ideally mentioning a specific situation like self-employment or a complex case. That review belongs in the hero. Rotate it when you get a better one.

Segmentation could go deeper

THE REFINEMENT

You have CTAs for different client types, but they may not go deep enough. A self-employed applicant who clicks a segmented CTA and lands on a generic page has lost the benefit of the segmentation immediately.

THE FIX

Build dedicated landing sections or pages for your top two client types. Each one should speak their language from headline to CTA — not just the button label. The conversion difference between a segmented button and a fully segmented journey is substantial.

Speed and core web vitals

THE REFINEMENT

A site scoring 71-100% on our quiz may still have performance issues that affect both conversion and Google ranking. A one-second delay in mobile load time reduces conversion by up to 20%.

THE FIX

Run your site through Google PageSpeed Insights. Address the top three issues it flags. Compress images, review third-party scripts, and ensure your hosting serves assets from a CDN. A fast site builds trust before a single word is read.

The final CTA isn't urgent enough

THE REFINEMENT

Your close is good but may lack the final push that converts a visitor who's interested but not yet committed. Most broker sites have a generic 'get in touch' close rather than one that creates genuine urgency.

THE FIX

Rewrite your final CTA section with a specific urgency mechanism — current availability, next build slot, response time guarantee. 'I have 1 slot remaining this month' converts better than 'Get in touch today' every single time.

No lead capture for visitors who aren't ready yet

THE REFINEMENT

Your site is optimised for visitors who are ready to book. But a significant proportion of your traffic is researching — not yet ready to commit. Without a way to capture them, they leave and you never hear from them again.

THE FIX

Add a lead magnet — a free guide, a checklist, a rate comparison tool. Offer it in exchange for an email address. These leads are lower intent today but represent future clients. A properly nurtured email list is one of the highest-ROI assets a broker can have.

Let's fix this together

Book a free 30-minute call. We'll open your site, go through your score, and show you exactly what a properly built broker site looks like. No pitch deck. No generic advice.
