No trust signals in the hero

THE PROBLEM

A broker website without visible Google reviews and an FCA reference number in the first screen loses the majority of visitors before they read a single line of copy. Trust must be established within 5 seconds or the decision is already made.

THE FIX

Add your Google star rating and best review directly into your hero section. Place your FCA reference number in the nav bar. These two changes alone will measurably reduce your bounce rate within the first week.

Generic single CTA for all client types

THE PROBLEM

One 'Get in touch' button for everyone treats a self-employed contractor the same as a first-time buyer. They have completely different anxieties, questions, and decision triggers. A single CTA speaks to none of them properly.

THE FIX

Build three separate CTA pathways — self-employed, first-time buyer, complex case. Each one uses language specific to that client type. The increase in enquiry rate from this change consistently outperforms any other single fix.

No direct booking option

THE PROBLEM

A contact form with a 48-hour response window is a conversion killer. Motivated clients who want to act now will find a broker whose site lets them book immediately rather than wait.

THE FIX

Install a Calendly booking widget and a WhatsApp direct link. Place both above the fold on mobile. Make it possible to reach you in under 30 seconds from any page.

Mobile experience is broken

THE PROBLEM

With over 60% of mortgage searches happening on mobile, a site built for desktop is losing more than half its potential clients at the first interaction.

THE FIX

Rebuild the mobile layout mobile-first. Full-width CTAs, thumb-friendly tap targets, hero content visible without scrolling, phone number one tap away from a direct call.

No clear positioning statement

THE PROBLEM

If a visitor can't understand within 5 seconds what you do, who you do it for, and why you're different — they leave. Vague headlines like 'Expert mortgage advice' do not convert.

THE FIX

Rewrite your hero headline to be specific: who you help, what outcome you deliver, what makes you different. 'Mortgage broker for the self-employed — complex cases approved' beats 'Expert mortgage advice' every time.

Let's fix this together

Book a free 30-minute call. We'll open your site, go through your score, and show you exactly what a properly built broker site looks like. No pitch deck. No generic advice.
